Simpson Elementary School 5th Graders Celebrate Respect Seasons of Respect Program End-of-Year Celebration, June 4, 2008

Camden, Del. – Fifth graders at Simpson Elementary School in the Caesar Rodney School District in Kent County will celebrate their completion of an anti-bullying workshop series, Seasons of Respect, with a pizza party on June 4th at 12:30 in the school cafeteria. Students will receive certificates of completion and “Respect” bracelets. Digital photos will be available by request.

Seasons of Respect, a program of the nonprofit organization Connecting Generations, is an in-class workshop series for fifth graders designed to prevent peer-to-peer bullying and encourage respectful behaviors. All of the fifth graders at Simpson Elementary participated in the workshops and nominated each other for respectful acts throughout the school year. Jen Wissman, the school counselor who has been coordinating the Seasons of Respect program at Simpson, felt that the students deserved a celebration for completing the workshop series and a reward for earning so many “respect nominations.” Connecting Generations, with a grant from Christ Church in Wilmington, DE is supporting this celebration.

Seasons of Respect workshops are interactive and designed so children at this crucial age before puberty and middle school creatively learn how to behave with respect towards peers and others. Seasons of Respect activities are tied to State English Language Arts and American School Counselor Association national standards so that time spent does not detract from the goals of teachers and counselors.

Seasons of Respect served more than 1600 children in ten schools, including Simpson Elementary, in Delaware in the 2007/2008 school year. Connecting Generations is a 501 (c) (3) nonprofit organization, offering the programs Creative Mentoring, Seasons of Respect, and Creative Transitions. Their mission is to provide creative programs and services that help Delaware’s children and adults lead purposeful, fulfilling, and self-directed lives. Their website is www.connecting-generations.org.
