VIDEO: Shoprite workers mentor school kids

By Mellany Armstrong

When kids go back to school at Warner Elementary School in Wilmington this fall, they'll be getting some homework help from a local business.

WDEL's Mellany Armstrong reports. Video Here

Lt. Gov. Matt Denn went shopping for mentors for school kids and found some at Shoprite. Chris Kenny, CFO of the four Kenny Family Shoprites of Delaware, says nearly 40 employees will be shaping future leaders.

Mike Fetrow is the assistant store manager at the Stanton Shoprite and looks forward to being a mentor.

Warner Principal Meg Hoefler says these kids thrive on the attention.

Shoprite is the first to sign up under Denn's initiative to pair ten businesses with ten schools. Shoprite employees are being trained by the group Creative Mentoring. Kenny says he hopes his employees inspire more businesses to sign up.
